INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

It is with great pleasure that I avail myself of the opportunity to call the attention of the Reverend Clergy and the Graduates of the General Seminary of the American Church to the importance of the work on the "Transmission of the Episcopate in English and American Lines," by Dr. Lucius Waterman, just issuing from the press. It needs the experience of one who has had something to do with the labour involved in the construction of Charts and Tables to appreciate the immense labour in such an undertaking. It is a kind of investigation in which nothing can be taken for granted, and every single point in tracing the Order of Succession demands close attention and careful study.

The method followed in tracing the Lines of Succession will be found of special value to the student of Church History. New light is thrown upon the question of the Succession, and a sustained interest is kept up from the beginning to the close. It is of interest and importance to know, and will be a surprise to many to find that the Post-Reformation English Succession may be traced, as is shown in Table III, and more fully in Note J, through an Irish Line quite irrespective of the Consecration of Archbishop Parker, as it will be to see that the whole Episcopal Succession of England since the latter part of the 7th century seems to be derived from the Italian and French Bishops of that period, and not at all from any Bishops, whether British, Irish, Saxon, or Italian, existing in Britain or Ireland before the days of Theodore of Canterbury and Wilfrid.

It will be seen from the method of treatment that the Apostolic Succession, so far from being a barren and abstract question, is one which by the aid of the cross-lights thrown upon it is made to take on a surpassing interest, and it is earnestly to be hoped that the expense and labour now bestowed upon it by an American scholar will meet with a merited reward.

PREFACE.

The object of the following Tables is threefold:

I. It is desired to show how much we really know, and know definitely, about the Succession of the Episcopate in the Anglican Communion, how far we can trace it back through the centuries in the line of Consecrators, date by date, and name by name.

Attention may here be particularly invited to the Irish Line referred to in Table III, which shows that our Episcopate is in no way dependent on the consecration of Abp. Parker.

II. It is desired to enable any American Bishop, or his friends for him, to ascertain through what Bishops, distinguished or obscure, good or bad, as history may show them, he has actually received the Episcopal Character himself.

Tables IV–XLII, and XLIV will show the names of all Bishops of the English Line who are known to have had part in the transmission of the Episcopate in any line that reaches our first American Bishops. Incidentally it may be seen by a process of exclusion how some most distinguished men have had no part in this great office of the Episcopate. Pearson and Ken and Bull in England, and it may be added, golden-mouthed Jeremy Taylor in Ireland, never took part in the consecration of any other Bishops at all.

The Tables mentioned carry us back to A. D. 1043. Table XLIII gives a Succession that is in part conjectural. While some of the Consecrators here suggested are probable rather than proven, a regular Succession of some sort is certain, connecting Stigand (A. D. 1043) back to Theodore of Tarsus (A. D. 668).

Tables XLV–LI show what further connections with the Anglican Episcopate have resulted from the presence of Bp. Fulford at some American Consecrations.

III. It is desired further to disabuse the minds of churchmen of some totally unhistorical notions that have grown up around this subject. It is vaguely felt by some that every English Bishop of the far past may be claimed as (so to speak) an Episcopal progenitor of every Bishop of English or American Consecration now. More especially our controversial pamphlets assure innocent readers that we derive the Episcopate in England and America from the Apostle S. John through the Bishops of Southern Gaul, in modern language Southern France (Arles, Lyons, Vienne), who consecrated Augustine of Canterbury. It will be shown in Note H that Augustine and the other Bishops of his mission for about 75 years have not probably left any trace in the Episcopate of later times, and likewise that no Bishop of the days following the coming of Theodore of Tarsus to be Archbishop of Canterbury, in 668, can claim descent from the Bishops of the Celtic Mission proceeding from Iona and Lindisfarne. It is a curious fact that the whole Episcopal Succession of England since the latter part of the 7th Century seems to be derived from the Italian and French Bishops of that period and not at all from any Bishops, whether British, Irish, Saxon, or Italian, existing in Great Britain or Ireland before the days of Theodore of Canterbury and Wilfrid of York.

The Editor of these Tables can claim nothing in them as his own except the mistakes which will probably be discovered and the idea of putting the matter into this Tabular Form, partly for convenience of access to the facts, and even more to give them a more impressive appeal to the imagination. Almost everything in the Tables has been borrowed from Stubbs (Registrum Sacrum Anglicanum, Editions 1 and 2), and it has seemed best to follow that eminent scholar in all doubtful matters of spelling of names and naming of Sees, even to the inconsistency of using Salisbury and Sarum in a way that looks unaccountable. Some additional information has been drawn from Cotton's Fasti Ecclesiæ Hibernicæ, and a great deal of helpful suggestion (and correction) from a book which deserves to be more widely known than it seems to be,—Rev. J. Bainbridge Smith's "English Orders: Whence Obtained" [pub. by Skeffington and Son: London, 1893].

Perhaps it is worth while to add that the reason for giving our Episcopal descent through Scotland in a single line, and not tracing out all the Consecrators from one remove to another, as in England, is chiefly that it would add much to the cost of publication without yielding the particular value of a fresh connection with the Episcopate of the distant past. The Compiler feels a tender interest in every detail of the history of the persecuted Episcopal Church of Scotland, in a great sense our Mother Church, but the modern Episcopal Succession of that Church runs back to no ancient Scottish source, but only to the Consecration of James Sharpe and three other Bishops by English Bishops, Dec. 15, 1661.

CHARLESTOWN, N. H., October 2, 1903. LUCIUS WATERMAN.

THE RIGHT REVEREND

CHARLES TYLER OLMSTED, D. D.,

WAS CONSECRATED AS BISHOP COADJUTOR OF CENTRAL NEW YORK,

IN GRACE CHURCH, UTICA, NEW YORK,

ON THURSDAY, OCT. 2, 1902,

BY

The Rt. Rev. FREDERIC DAN HUNTINGTON, D. D., Bishop of Central New York,

ASSISTED BY

The Rt. Rev. HENRY CODMAN POTTER, D. D., New York;

The Rt. Rev. WILLIAM DAVID WALKER, D. D., Western New York;

The Rt. Rev. WILLIAM WOODRUFF NILES, D. D., New Hampshire;

The Rt. Rev. GEORGE WORTHINGTON, D. D., Nebraska;

The Rt. Rev. WILLIAM ANDREW LEONARD, D. D., Ohio;

The Rt. Rev. CHARLES SANFORD OLMSTED, D. D., Colorado.

The first of the Tables which follow shows a connection which is common to all our American Bishops except Bp. Seabury. The second Table shows a connection through Bp. Seabury, shared by all except Bps. White, Provoost, and Madison, and it will be observed that the line of Seabury and that of White become common property in the 17th Century. The third Table brings in Bp. Fulford of Montreal, who took part in the Consecration of Bp. Horatio Potter, 62 in the American Succession, and Bishop Quintard, 75 in the American Succession. The succession from Bp. Fulford has reached every Bishop in the American Line since No. 62 except Nos. 65, 66, 69, 72, 98, and 103. Every American Bishop now living has all Bp. Fulford's Consecrators among his own.

TABLE I.

Showing the Connection between the American Episcopate of to-day and the English Episcopate of Pre-Norman times by the shortest line now traceable.

NOTE—It will be observed by comparing Table XX that the Episcopal Succession in England did not at any time depend exclusively upon the two Bishops named above. One Bishop of the preceding Table obtained Consecration in Italy. Each of the others had a group of Consecrators, but it happens that for a short period we come to records so ill kept that no Co-consecrators are named in any of these cases, and no record of Consecration exists in two of them. But no one of these Bishops could have obtained the income attaching to his See without bringing proof of his Consecration in regular order.

Showing certain possibilities of Episcopal Succession in England from Theodore of Tarsus to Stigand and Ealdred (Table XLII).

In the 375 years from Theodore of Tarsus, A. D. 668, to Stigand (1043) there was never any lack of Bishops in England to consecrate for a vacant See, and no man could have gained acceptance as a Bishop in any of those years without having had regular Episcopal consecration. Moreover, there seems to have been no habit of going abroad for consecration during this period. Cases of that occur, but very rarely. In general, we may assume that when there was a living Archbishop of Canterbury, he would be the chief Consecrator of all new Bishops in his province. On the death of an Archbishop, the See might be filled by translation of a Bishop already consecrated for another Diocese, or some of the leading Bishops of the Province—Winchester having then the highest dignity after Canterbury, and London next—would be called together to consecrate a new man as Archbishop. Bearing these conditions in mind, we may construct a highly probable statement of the course of the transmission of the Episcopate from Theodore in one of its several lines.

THEODORE consecrated Gebmund for Rochester in 678.

GEBMUND, who was living in 699, very probably assisted in consecrating Ecgwine for Worcester in 693. The chief consecrator would naturally be Berctuald [or Brihtwald], Abp. of Canterbury, who was consecrated in France, by Godwin, Abp. of Lyons, June 29, 693.

ECGWINE, who lived in 717, may probably have assisted in consecrating Daniel for Winchester—Berctuald was chief consecrator—in 705.

DANIEL was chief consecrator of Tatwine as Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishops of London, Lichfield, and Rochester assisting, June 10, 731, after the death of Berctuald.

TATWINE, who died in 734, consecrated in 733 both Alwig for Lindsey and Sigga [or Sigfrith] for Selsey.

ALWIG, or SIGGA, is likely to have taken part in the consecration of Nothelm to be Archbishop of Canterbury in 735.

NOTHELM—d. 740—consecrated Cuthbert for Hereford in 736.

CUTHBERT—translated to Canterbury, 740, d. 758—was probably chief consecrator of Ecgwulf for London in 745.

ECGWULF was one of the three consecrators of Jaenberht to be Archbishop of Canterbury in 766.

JAENBERHT—d. 790—was probably chief consecrator of Cyneberht, who was made Bp. of Winchester in 786, and died in 801.

CYNEBERHT was probably chief consecrator of Aethelheard to be Archbishop of Canterbury, July 21, 793.

AETHELHEARD consecrated Deneberht as Bp. of Worcester in 798, and lived to 805.

DENEBERHT was one of 12 Bishops who met in the Council of Acle in 805 and consecrated Wulfred to be Archbishop of Canterbury.

WULFRED, who lived to 831 or 832, was probably the chief consecrator of Wigthegn, made Bp. of Winchester between 806 and 811.

WIGTHEGN, who lived to 836, would naturally be chief consecrator of Ceolnoth, made Archbishop of Canterbury, Aug. 24, 833.

CEOLNOTH consecrated Alfred to be Bp. of Winchester in 862.

ALFRED (living in 871) would naturally be chief consecrator of Ethelred to be Archbishop of Canterbury in 870.

ETHELRED consecrated Wereferth to be Bp. of Worcester, June 7, 873.

WEREFERTH, who lived to 915, was probably one of the Bishops who assisted Plegmund, Abp. of Canterbury (said to have received his consecration at Rome from Pope Formosus), in the consecration of Athelm, Bp. of Wells, and six other Bishops in 909.

ATHELM, becoming Archbishop of Canterbury in 914, must probably have been the chief consecrator of Wulfhelm, who succeeded him in that year as Bp. of Wells.

WULFHELM, becoming Archbishop of Canterbury in 923, must probably have been chief consecrator of Odo, made Bp of Ramsbury within the limits 925–927.

ODO, becoming Archbishop of Canterbury in 942, consecrated the famous Dunstan to be Bp. of Worcester in 957.

DUNSTAN, who became Bp. of London in 959, and Archbishop of Canterbury in 960, and lived to 988, would naturally have been the chief consecrator of Sigeric to be Bp. of Ramsbury in 985.

SIGERIC, who became Archbishop of Canterbury in 990, was probably chief consecrator of Elfric to be Bp. of Ramsbury in his place in that same year.

ELFRIC, becoming Archbishop of Canterbury in 995, and living to 1005, is the altogether probable consecrator of Wulfstan to be Bp. of Worcester and Abp. of York, in 1003.

WULFSTAN consecrated Ethelnoth to be Archbishop of Canterbury, Nov. 13, 1020.

ETHELNOTH, who lived till 1038, consecrated Elfric to be Archbishop of York in 1023, and must, one would think, have been the consecrator of Eadsige to be a Suffragan Bishop in the Arch-Diocese of Canterbury in 1035.

ELFRIC of York is the probable consecrator of EALDRED, Bp. of Worcester, 1044.

EADSIGE, Canterbury, 1038, is the probable consecrator of STIGAND, Bp. of Elmham, 1043.

This Ealdred and Stigand appear in Table XLII.

TABLE XLIV.

Additional English Consecrators brought in through Irish Line given in Table III.

[1]. Bonner (Table III).
By 204 (Gardiner), Richard Sampson [4], and John Skip [5].

[2]. Thirlby (Table III).
By Bonner, 179 (Hodgkin), and Nicolas Heath [6].

[3]. Griffin (Table III).
By Bonner, Cuthbert Tunstall [7], and 204 (Gardiner).

[4]. Richard Sampson, Chichester; Lichfield, 1543; d. 1554.
1536, June 11. Cons. with 207 (Rugge).

[5]. John Skip, Hereford; d. 1552.
1539, Nov. 23. By 188 (Cranmer), 177 (Barlow), and Richard Yngworth [8].

[6]. Nicolas Heath, Rochester; Worcester, 1543; York, 1555–1559; d. 1579.
1540, April 4. Cons. with Bonner.

[7]. Cuthbert Tunstall, London; Durham, 1530; dep. 1552 and 1559; d. 1559.
1522, Oct. 19. By 208 (Warham), 209 (Fisher), and Thomas Ruthall [9].

[8]. Richard Yngworth, Dover [Suffragan]; d. 1545.
1537, Dec. 9. Cons. with 179 (Hodgkin).

[9]. Thomas Ruthall, Durham; d. 1523.
1509, June 24. By Christopher Bainbridge [10], John Hatton [11], and 220 (Nykke).

[10]. Christopher Bainbridge, Durham; York, 1508; d. 1514.
1507 [Dec. 12?] Consecrators not recorded.

[11]. John Hatton, Bp. of Negropont (in partibus), a Suffragan of York; d. 1516.
1506. Consecrators not recorded.

1779, Sept. 19. By 7, 9, 6, lxv.

TABLE LI.

Consecrators in the Seventh Remove from Bp. Fulford.

lxv. RICHARD HURD, Lichfield; Worcester, 1781; d. 1808.
1775, Feb. 12. By 7, 8, 9, 6.

And all remaining Consecrators from whom Bp. Fulford derives are included among those assigned to Bps. White, Provoost, and Madison.

NOTES.

NOTE A.

William White, Feb. 4, 1787.

Every Bishop of our American Succession since the first four,—Seabury, consecrated in Scotland in 1784, White and Provoost, consecrated in England in 1787, and Madison, consecrated in England in 1790,—traces his descent from every one of these four. This gives interest to the Tables showing all English Bishops from whom White and Provoost, or Madison, are known to derive their orders, as all such stand in a similar relation to every American Bishop later.

The line by chief Consecrators from Bp. White to Abp. Potter runs thus:

WILLIAM WHITE, Pennsylvania.
JOHN MOORE, Canterbury [Table III].
1775, Feb. 12.
FREDERIC CORNWALLIS, Lichfield; Canterbury, 1768; d. 1783.
1750, Feb. 19.
THOMAS HERRING, Bangor; York, 1743; Canterbury, 1747; d. 1757.
1738, Jan. 15.
JOHN POTTER, Canterbury [Table I].

NOTE B.

Brian Duppa, June 13, 1638.

The line by chief Consecrators here runs thus:

BRIAN DUPPA.
WILLIAM LAUD, Canterbury [Table III].
GEORGE MONTEIGNE, London [Table III].
GEORGE ABBOT, Canterbury [Table I].

NOTE C.

Edmund Grindal, Dec. 21, 1559.

The line by chief Consecrators is:

EDMUND GRINDAL.
MATTHEW PARKER, Canterbury; d. 1575.
1559, Dec. 17.
WILLIAM BARLOW, whose consecration is abundantly certain, but whose Consecrators are not on record. A Co-consecrator of Parker was Hodgkin [Table I].

NOTE D.

John Stafford, May 27, 1425.

The Co-consecrators in this case are not given in Stubbs' Registrum Sacrum Anglicanum (Second Edition). But Stubbs lends his very high authority to the statement as a "careful deduction from evidence," that there were five Co-consecrators, whose names he gives, Benedict Nicolls, of Bangor, being one.

It is in his first edition of the Registrum that this list is given. That it does not appear in the second edition is not to be understood as implying that Dr. Stubbs retracted, or even doubted, his former conclusions, but only that he changed his plan so as to include nothing but direct contemporary records, and leave all matters of inference to take their place elsewhere.

NOTE E.

John of Halton, Sept. 14, 1292.

This John, sometimes called de Halucton, was consecrated on the day above named at York. We are not told by whom, but four Bishops were in York on that day. Not less than three could have been joined in the consecration, or it would have been considered scandalously irregular, and much notice would have been taken of the breach of propriety. If, then, by any chance, Henry, Bishop of Whithern, was not a Consecrator—but there can be little doubt that all four took part—then certainly all the others were Consecrators, and the line would be:

JOHN OF HALTON.

ANTONY BECK, Durham; Patriarch of Jerusalem, 1306; d. 1311.
1284, Jan. 9.

HENRY, Whithern.

And so on as before, only with one more step.

NOTE F.

Theobald, Archbishop of Canterbury, was consecrated by Alberic of Ostia, a Papal Legate, in the presence and with the assistance of almost all the Bishops of England. Even if Roger of Sarum, then the Senior Bishop of England, did not take part, as he must probably have, at any rate nearly every other Bishop then alive in England had been consecrated by William of Corbeuil, Archbishop of Canterbury from 1123 to 1136, who had among his Consecrators Roger of Sarum. If there is any possible mistake in the line as given, a true one would certainly be this:

THEOBALD.

ONE OF THE ASSISTING BISHOPS.

WILLIAM DE CORBEUIL.

ROGER.

ANSELM.

And so on as before, only with two more steps between Theobald and Anselm.

NOTE G.

Security of Succession before Stigand.

As we go back up the line of succession we come to the end of our definite knowledge with Stigand, A. D. 1043. We can no longer say with certainty that A was consecrated by B, and B by C, A, B, and C standing for particular names. But there is no uncertainty whatever about the fact of an unbroken succession of Episcopal Consecrations in England uniting Stigand, A. D. 1043, with Theodore of Tarsus, A. D. 668. Table XLIII gives a very probable line of succession between Theodore and Stigand, but the slight uncertainty as to whether all the persons there suggested really took part in consecrating those who are there connected with them in that way does not, as is there explained, throw any doubt on the fact that during all that time in England no man would have been received or regarded as a Bishop unless he had received consecration by a preceding Bishop in what was understood to be a regular succession from the Apostles.

A friend points out that in addition to the feeling of Churchmen as such, the Civil Authority had an interest in the making of the Church's chief officers from the time that Christianity began to be an "established" religion in union with the State. It was a matter of high importance to the State to assure itself that every Bishop should be installed in his office with unquestionable regularity, because his office was an office of the State.

But this absolute security that in England men calling themselves Bishops were always consecrated by persons who had been made Bishops before them, must be distinguished from an assurance too often assumed that any group of English Bishops must derive their succession from all persons who were Bishops in England at any earlier time. Thus a Bishop-elect might go to France or to Italy for consecration and not connect himself with the particular line of his own country. Or a particular group of Bishops might all die (an example will be given in Note H), and leave no successors upon whom they had laid their hands, throwing upon the National Church the care of securing a new supply of Bishops by consecration from abroad. It has twice happened to the Church of Scotland since the Reformation to be left without a living Bishop, and to secure the consecration of new Bishops in England. Yet the Apostolic Succession is maintained unbroken in the Church of Scotland. That any particular succession should run out is nothing, so long as the Church which has had the benefit of it secures another from the same original source.

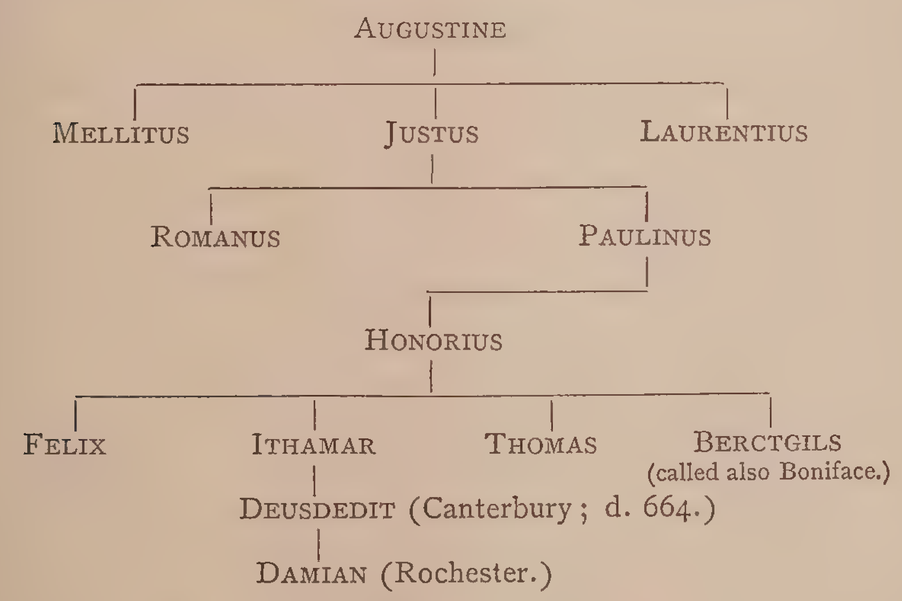
NOTE H.

Failure of Early English Successions to perpetuate themselves.

The Succession from Augustine of Canterbury, consecrated A. D. 597, is as follows:



This is the whole of the Augustinian Succession. In the year 665 only two of these were living, Berctgils (or Boniface) and Damian. The priest chosen to succeed Deusdedit as Archbishop of Canterbury was sent to Rome for consecration by the Bishop of that great central See. He died there, and after some delay the Roman Bishop, Vitalian, was requested to choose one of his own clergy and consecrate him for the vacant Archbishopric. Theodore of Tarsus, on whom the choice fell, was consecrated at Rome, March 26, 668. When he arrived in England, Damian, of Rochester, was dead. Theodore's first consecration was that of a new Bishop of Rochester. His next consecration, in the same year, 669, was that of a successor for Boniface, of Dunwich. Did Boniface take part in the consecration of Damian's successor, Putta, for Rochester? There is no proof of it, certainly, and no great probability. Boniface may have lived long enough, and had health and strength enough, for a journey to meet Theodore before his death, but certainly his death must have followed very soon. To say the least, it is not safe to assert positively that any Bishop of to-day is connected with the Apostles through Augustine of Canterbury.

Of other Episcopal lines existing in England there were two Bishops, Wini, of Winchester, and Wilfred, of York, who had received consecration in France. Wini was the consecrator of S. Chad, and had had associated with him in that consecration two British Bishops. It would be interesting to connect our Bishops with S. Chad and with Bishops of the old British line; but here again we have no proof that S. Chad ever assisted in a consecration, and the probabilities look the other way. He was consecrated for York, while Wilfred, the proper Bishop of that See, was living abroad in what seemed an outrageous neglect of his Diocese. Theodore regarded the intrusion of Chad as so irregular that he actually maintained that the consecration by Wini was no consecration at all. He consecrated Chad over again himself, and sent him to be a Missionary Bishop in the kingdom of Mercia, where Lichfield now claims him as first of its Bishops. It is extremely unlikely that S. Chad ever joined in any consecration after being sent into this missionary exile, and quite certain that Theodore would not have allowed him to assist in any before his re-consecration.

There remain two other successions to be mentioned. The Celtic Mission from Iona, which did a noble pioneer work in evangelizing Northern and Middle England, has left no trace in English Episcopal Orders. Its Bishops had all withdrawn themselves to Scotland before the coming of Theodore, in bitterness of spirit because of the acceptance of the Roman Easter by the Northumbrian Church, except Jaruman, of Mercia, who died in 667 without consecrating any other. On the other hand, the early British church had, very possibly, a long-continuing Episcopal succession in Wales and Cornwall, but that also has long since come to an end. Even if there were such persons as S. David and S. Teilo, which is probable, and even if they were consecrated by a Bishop of Jerusalem, which is not only legendary, but highly improbable in itself, it still remains, that, after the conquest of Wales by English kings, all Welsh Bishops for generations were consecrated by English Bishops, or else on the Continent, and all Episcopal succession from the old National Church was deliberately cut off.

NOTE I.

John Patterson, Galloway; Glasgow; Edinburgh.

The Consecrators of this John Patterson were the Archbishop of Glasgow and two other Bishops. Percival, in his "Apostolic Succession," names Robert Leighton as the chief Consecrator; but Dr. Grub, in his "Memorials of the Church of Scotland," names Alexander Burnet, as given in Table II. This is more likely to be right, Burnet being in that year actual Abp. of Glasgow, while Robert Leighton was "sometime Archbishop," having resigned that charge the year before. Dr. Grub refers to Robert Law's "Memorials," p. 77, when this act is mentioned, and Law's usus loquendi seems plainly to indicate the legal and actual holder of the Archbishop as the man whom he means. Law was a contemporary.

NOTE J.

The Irish Succession.

William Fuller (Limerick: Lincoln) assisted in consecrating seven English Bishops, of whom four have place in these Tables,—

Antony Sparrow (IX, 90);
Nathaniel Crewe (VIII, 62);
Guy Carleton (IX, 82);
Robert Morgan (X, 106).

Besides Fuller five other Irish Bishops contribute to this connection of the English with the Irish Episcopate. They are

(1) Ezekiel Hopkins (IX, 94), a Co-Consecrator of Thomas Spratt (VIII, 66);

(2) William Murray (XI, 124), a Consecrator of Matthew Wren (X, 101), and of sundry other Bishops, including 116, 122, 123, 125, and 165, of these Tables;

(3) Christopher Hampton, a Co-consecrator of Thomas Morton (XI, 114);

(4) John Thornborough (XII, 134), a Co-consecrator of William Land (XI, 113), and also of 117 and 144; and

(5) George Downham, a Co-consecrator of Theophilus Field (XII, 138).

It should have been noted in Table III that Hugh Curwin (Dublin, 1555) was translated to Oxford in 1567.

The question will naturally suggest itself,—Why does not the compiler of these Tables show what could be done, at least conjecturally, in the manner of Table XLIII, toward carrying the Irish Succession back to S. Patrick?

Unhappily we meet the same policy of conquering people here as in the case of the Welsh Church. As the Church of Ireland fell under Norman-French government more and more it was the policy of the invaders to have its Bishops consecrated by the Abp. of Canterbury or abroad, and all connection with the native Episcopal Succession of preceding ages seems to have been deliberately cut off. No Bishop of to-day, Roman or Anglican, can claim succession by consecration from S. Patrick and S. Malachi.

INDEX I.

Consecrators in the English Line. (Names in Table XLIII are not included.)

Name and See	Table	No.
Abbot, George: Lichfield; London; Canterbury	I, XII	139
